Mẫu bài viết

One of my favourite websites is a free photo-sharing site called www.photoshowme.com. It's a great place for photographers to show their photos to other people.

The site has quite a few good features. Firstly, it's easy to find photographs that you are interested in. They are organized into different categories like 'travel', 'food' or 'people' so you can search for things you want to look at. Another good point is that you can comment on each other's photos, and every month a professional photographer is invited to make comments. In my opinion, you learn a lot from this person's comments.

The only problem is that it has too much advertising. I think that's how the site makes money, but when you are looking at beautiful photographs, it's annoying when an advert appears on the screen.

On the whole, it's a useful website for anyone who loves taking photographs and communicating with other people about them./.
